Nepal's Education System after the Pandemic

Nepal's education system has been greatly impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic, with schools and universities being closed for months. Students and teachers alike have had to adapt to online learning, which has been a significant challenge for many. Despite the efforts of the government and educational institutions, the quality of education has been severely affected. This year's academic session started two months late, and many schools struggled to provide uninterrupted education to their students.

However, with the easing of the COVID-19 restrictions and the gradual reopening of schools, the education system in Nepal is finally getting back on track. Since a year, teachers are now able to return to the classrooms, and students are able to resume their studies in a more structured environment.

Despite these challenges, the education sector in Nepal is gradually recovering. The government implemented measures such as online classes, reducing class sizes, and promoting social distancing to help schools safely reopen. Dolphin Magic School and other educational institutions in Nepal have adjusted their curriculum to make up for the lost time and are now operating normally and is determined to finish this year's academic session in time.

In conclusion, while the COVID-19 pandemic has caused significant disruptions to Nepal's education system, things are finally settling down. With the reopening of schools and the launch of various initiatives, students are now able to receive the quality education they deserve. The government, educators, and students alike must continue to work together to ensure that the education system remains strong and resilient in the face of future challenges.

Project Ding Dong

Project Ding Dong is a new initiative started by Dolphin Magic School to help the sponsor parents understand their sponsored students better. The project aims to provide the sponsor parents with detailed information about the students they are supporting. This information will help the sponsor parents understand the background, financial status and overall activities of the student.

The basic information about the student will include their name, age, grade, and school activities. The family background information will include details about the student's family, their living conditions and any special needs or circumstances. The financial status of the student will include information about their income, expenses and any other sources of support. This information will help the sponsor parents understand the financial needs of the student and the impact of their support on the student's life.

The overall activities of the student will include their school performance, extra-curricular activities, and any other interests they have. This information will help the sponsor parents understand the student's personality, strengths and weaknesses and how they can support their education.

Project Ding Dong is expected to be beneficial for both the sponsor parents and students. The sponsor parents will have a better understanding of the student they are supporting, which will help them make informed decisions about their support. On the other hand, students will feel more connected to their sponsor parents, knowing that they are being supported by someone who is interested in their lives.

In conclusion, Project Ding Dong is a crucial initiative that will help the sponsor parents understand their sponsored students and provide them with the necessary support they need. Dolphin Magic School is committed to making this project a success and ensuring that the students receive the best possible education and support.

Second Terminal Examination Held

The second terminal examination of Dolphin Magic School has concluded with success. The examination spanned over eight days and saw the active participation of students ranging from Playgroup to Grade 8. As one of the crucial tests of the year, the students performed admirably during this period. Following the conclusion of the examination, the students were granted winter holidays of two weeks.

Upon resuming school, the results of the examination were announced to the parents. The school adopted a grading system a few years ago, replacing the conventional result system. This grading system is widely used in schools across the country, and the results were distributed accordingly. The parents were asked to collect their children's report cards.

Overall, the examination went smoothly, and the students performed well. With the adoption of the grading system, the school has ensured that the results are in line with the current educational practices in the country. The parents have been informed about their children's performance, enabling them to provide necessary support and encouragement to their children.

Sonya Tamang: A story of Miracle

It is truly heartwarming to see Soniya back in school, healthy and full of energy. A year ago, she faced a terrifying and life-threatening situation when she consumed a deadly pesticide, but she has since recovered thanks to the unwavering support of many people. The medical expenses were significant, but through the generosity of the donors and the efforts of the management team, the necessary funds were raised to cover her treatment.

Soniya's recovery was a long and difficult journey. After the accident, she was immediately rushed to the hospital and had to undergo several days of intensive care. The medical staff worked tirelessly to keep her stable and provided the necessary antidotes to counteract the toxic effects of the pesticide. Despite their efforts, Soniya still experienced various side effects after being discharged from the hospital.

However, with time and continued care, she has since made a full recovery. She no longer experiences any side effects, and she is back in school, eager to learn and participate in class. Her dedication and hard work have paid off, and she is now a thriving student once again.

The support and compassion shown by the donors, management team, and medical staff were crucial in saving Soniya's life. It is a testament to the power of community and the importance of providing assistance to those in need. Without their help, Soniya may not have been able to recover and return to school. We are grateful for their kindness and generosity, and we hope that Soniya's story will inspire others to support those in need and to never give up hope.

Moving the School Kitchen

Moving the school kitchen to a more spacious area is a great initiative by DMS to provide a better lunch experience for the students and staff. The decision to move the kitchen to the garage is an important one as it provides enough space for cooking, storage of food and supplies, and accommodating everyone in the open area outside. This new setup will not only help to ease the rush during lunch breaks but also enhance the quality of the food being served.

Proper planning is crucial for the success of this project. The estimation has been completed, which is a significant step towards the planning process. The next step is to ensure that the planning is carried out correctly, keeping in mind all the necessary requirements. This includes the layout of the kitchen, the equipment needed, and the workflow for the staff.

Overall, moving the school kitchen to a more spacious area is a necessity that will benefit the school community. Proper planning and communication are crucial for the success of the project, and the school administration will ensure that they are carried out effectively. Doors and windows installed in the urinal

The urinal facility in Dolphin Magic School (DMS) has been functioning for some time now, but it was lacking certain components such as indoor doors and windows. However, recently all the necessary elements have been installed, and the urinal for both boys and girls is now complete.

The school management had been facing the challenge of accommodating the increasing number of students and staff in the school. They realized that it was important to have a proper urinal facility that could provide for everyone's needs. Therefore, the construction work started and was completed in a short span of time, except for the windows that were installed later.

Now that the urinal facility is complete, the school can shift its focus to the remaining construction work around the school. The installation of the indoor doors and windows in the urinary facility will provide better privacy and security for the students and staff. Overall, the school management has successfully addressed the pressing need for a proper urinal facility, improving the quality of life for everyone in the school community.
